ABSTRACT

This report presents the results of the annual survey of geographic origins or permanent residence of all first-time credit course students attending the institutions of the State University of New York during the 1972 fall term. Following summary tables of first-time students by institution and permanent residence of first-time students, Part 2 presents tables indicating permanent residence of first-time students at university centers, university colleges, health science centers, specialized colleges, statutory colleges, agricultural and technical colleges, and community colleges. Part 3 presents tables indicating the institution of first-time students by permanent residence of counties, out-of-state residence, and foreign countries. Part 4, the appendix, includes percent distributions and a comparison of high school graduates with first-time students by area, region, and county. (MJM)

PREFACE

This report presents the results of the annual survey of geographic origins or permanent residence of all first-time credit course students attending the institutions of the State University of New York during the 1972 fall term. It is the companion report to Geographic Origins of Students, Fall 1972 which provides permanent residence data for all credit course students. These reports have been published for five years now, and comprise a significant data resource for studies of the residence and migration of college and university students. The state-wide nature of the student bodies of State University institutions has led to a deep interest in these data for enrollment projecting, for policy planning, and for other administrative purposes.

Although most studies of the geographic origins of college youth suffer the problem of a valid definition of "residence," first-time student studies are probably quite free of the customary variables affecting definitional inconsistency. First-time students have never been to a college previous to the term they are reported. Most first-time students are minors under 21 years of age, single, living at home when applying, and then attending full-time -- factors likely to change as the students grow older, marry and participate concurrently in non-student occupations which may affect their domicile. The use of first-time students as a measure of the drawing power of an institution is less subject to the confusion between "permanent" and "student" addresses. This group can also be more closely related to the high school graduates of the preceding year in each county.

A general picture of this relationship is provided by Table 143 in the appendix of this report. However, because the data for the percent entering postsecondary education is collected on an estimated basis in the spring before the actual graduation and three to four months prior to college entrance it should be used with caution. While many high school students have firm plans by May of their graduation year, many others do not and the limitations of this estimated data should be recognized.

Because this report is confined to the enrollments and permanent residence of first-time undergraduate students, those S.U.N.Y. institutions which do not offer any beginning level college programs are not included. Empire State College is also excluded because they were not able to supply permanent resident information for their first-time students.

This report includes eight tables of basic data on the permanent residence of University students in relation to the four coordinating areas of New York State. These areas are a policy and planning framework through which the University hopes to better meet the educational needs of the citizens of any given area of the state while at the same time maximizing the efficient use of the existing academic resources in a given area. To aid this process we have included tables which list the State University institutions in each area and show the permanent residence distribution of the full-time first-time students by area as a percent of total enrollment. Further discussion of these and other tables in this report is provided in the Summary on the following pages.

SUMMARY

In the 1972 fall semester, 104,134 first-time students entered State University institutions. Of these, 76,132 or 73% were full-time students and 101,364 or 97% of the total were permanent residents of New York State.

Not surprisingly, the proportion of these students attending colleges located in their home county varies with the type of institution. In most cases where the numbers of students at a college are arrayed by county of origin, the numbers are largest for the county in which the college is located. This holds true for first-time students at the University Centers but not for all of the University Colleges. Table 8 shows that at these four-year institutions the largest numbers come from Erie, Nassau, Suffolk and Westchester counties although only three of the twelve such colleges are located in these counties. The Upstate Health Sciences Center, the Specialized Colleges and the Statutory Colleges draw rather evenly from across the state. The Agricultural and Technical Colleges enroll their largest numbers from their home counties or adjacent counties. This is also true for the Community Colleges under the program of the State University of New York.

The 101,215 first-time students at S.U.N.Y. institutions from a New York State county[a] represent 76% of the 1971-72 high school graduates of this state planning to enter a post-secondary educational institution located in New York State. It should be noted that the percents listed in Table 143 are the percent of the total high school graduates who are planning to enter a New York State college. This is known as the college-going rate. In order to arrive at the portion served by S.U.N.Y. it is necessary to multiply the figure in the first column by the percent in the second and to then divide that quotient into the number of students in the third column. Using Table 143 of this report and the corresponding data published in Geographic Origins of First-time Students, Fall 1970, and the report for 1971, we find that the New York State Education Department estimates of the college-going rate within the state and the percent served by S.U.N.Y. line up as follows:

Year	College-going rate within New York State	Percent of college-going rate served by S.U.N.Y.
1969-70	56.0%	69.0%
1970-71	56.8%	75.0%
1971-72	55.7%	76.0%

---

[a] Table 143 does not include the 149 New York State students whose county of origin is not known.

Table 143 of this report is arranged by region within S.U.N.Y. coordinating areas which allows for similar comparisons in more detail.

Additional tables (145-150) in the appendix of this report provide data on full-time, first-time students by college within coordinating areas. This allows consideration of how many students attend a S.U.N.Y. college in the area of their permanent residence and which areas contribute the most students to each type of institution (Table 144).

Another possible concern is the net out-migration of students from each coordinating area. Of the 74,201 full-time, first-time students attending S.U.N.Y. institutions in Fall 1972, 15% of the 16,035 from Area #1, 28% of the 7,095 from Area #2, 20% of the 9,807 from Area #3, and 18% of the 41,124 from Area #4, attended S.U.N.Y. institutions located in other areas[a].

No study of this magnitude could have been conducted or completed without the extensive cooperation of campus personnel and of those in the Central Staff Office of Institutional Research. Those who will use this document will be grateful for that effort. We would give serious consideration to any recommendations for future studies or reports of this type.

[a] The 140 full-time, first-time students from New York State whose county of origin are not known are not statistically significant.
